The idea for my final project to be based around my interest in poems was actually recommended by my teacher which was exciting because I honestly didn't think of it myself. My general idea around this assignment was to really showcase my poems similar to how I do on instagram. I use a variety of themes that change from time to time that mostly just reflect on creators growth and so at certain times I'd change what color I use as my background theme, the font and any accessories I would say to showcase my poem. I'd say the influence for the project really came from my professor and other poetry accounts that I follow on instagram that have really inspired my interest in poetry.
